

AUTUMN....For the Tribune.
Inns withered leaf denounces the Fall.
The hour of Nature's sad decay
Has rapid pass the seasons all—
A moment, and they fade away.

The Spring is all dead and show,
Like the bright morning of our youth.

The Autumn, with its look of woe,
Tells but the melancholy truth.

Where are the morning dreams of Labor?
Youth's Spring time buds, the flowers where?
Ask of you withered form, yet still

With Hope, too worn by woe and care
The bower of Life thus shall fade,

And winter As soon steal on:

Our sunshiny change to gloom and shade.

An instant seen, then ever gone! N. E. 2.

OUR STATE....From the National Era

BY JOHN J. WHITTIER.

THE SOUTH LAND has its fields of cane,
The Prairie boasts its heavy grain,
And sunnier gales and sands of gold.
On rising marts and sands of gold.

Knob, branch, and cold, our little State
Is hard of soil, of limits straight;
Hairy yellow sands are sandstone,
Her only mines are ice and stone!

From Autumn frost to April rain,
Too long her winter woods complain
From building flower to falling leaf,
Her Summer time is all too brief.

But on her rocks and on her sands
And stormy hills the school house stands.
And when her rugged soil denies,
The harvest of the Mind supplies.

The treasures of our Commonwealth
Are free, strong minds, and hearts of health,
And more to her than gold or grain,
The coming hard and cultured brain!

For well she keeps her ancient stock—
The stubborn strength of Pilgrim Rock
And still maintains, with milder laws
And clearer light, the Good Old Cause!

Nor dreads the spirit's panting hands,
Near her the Church spire stands a school;

White near her Church spire stands a school;

White near her Church spire stands a school!

IT CANNOT LAST....For the Tribune
It cannot last—this paleness life.
Thou nightmarish sleep that yields no rest
The spending time removes the strife
To bear with terror Europe's breast.
Report is not for dungeon chains
Pens cannot dwell amid mists vast
Content comes not with hunger pains
The genius of life it cannot last.

The North and West, the East and South
N. C. crimson has provokes the blate—
Though sealed is Freedom's trumpet mouth.

Quenched her fires—it cannot last.

Though frightened men in frenzy train
To seek for safety in the Past—
From moss-grown tomb and mouldering urn
Demanding life—it cannot last.

Though Death is here, a deathless test,

Not rise till vengeance dire be done
On all his life—it cannot last.

Returning life, returning light,
Bring courage for that conflict vast.

With energy for years of strife
Unwound yet IT CANNOT LAST!

RED FLAG.

Bonded Warehouses.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

Some very appropriate strictures on the operation of the Bonded system have recently appeared in one of our morning prints, and I believe, elicited the approbation of a large portion of the mercantile community.

FIRE IN CINCINNATI.—A fire broke out in Chambers and Rodger's Flooring Mill on Home street this morning, which destroyed the building and machinery.

THE COURTS.—The General and Special Terms of the Supreme Court, both branches of the Superior Court, Common Pleas, and the Circuit Court commenced their November terms yesterday. The Oyer and Terminer also opened and adjourned for the term.

CALIFORNIA GUARDS.—This corps of our citizen soldiers, under command of Capt. Wm. G. Anna, passed The Tribune's office yesterday afternoon returning from Jersey City, where they had been doing some most splendid shooting, as their target evidence. We observed two silver cups borne in the ranks, but did not learn the winners names. If every friend of Tom Canney does his duty as well today as these Guards did yesterday, they will have good cause of congratulation for the next three years.

YOUNG AMERICA GUARDS.—Yesterday afternoon this corps of young men returned from their annual target shoot. Capt. J. J. Kelly is their commander. Their target showed that they well sustain the fame of America for sharp shooting.

WARD GUARDS.—This company, commanded by Capt. Howard A. Baldwin, turned out fifty muskets yesterday on their annual target excursion. They made an excellent appearance. The hot prize, a fine silver goblet, presented by George Ward, Esq., was won by Llyod Myers. The second prize, a silver cup, was carried off by Private William Evans.
